

Seven Things to Know About Filing a Commercial Property Tax Appeal This Year

The 2023 property tax appeal filing deadline is fast approaching. Property owners who wish to consider an appeal of their 2023 property tax assessment have a limited window of time to take the steps necessary to assess whether filing an appeal is well-aligned with their specific circumstances - including an initial baseline analysis, evaluation of market value, and other factors.

This 30-minute lunchtime webinar will provide an overview of seven things that need to be considered when contemplating a property tax assessment appeal:

Our speaker will be:

Mike Coskey has significant experience in guiding property owners through the evaluation, preparation, filing and prosecution of commercial property tax appeals. He has represented litigants in complex tax appeals, including those involving casinos, office complexes, corporate headquarters, industrial facilities, oil refineries, gas stations, warehouses, hotels, banks, telecommunication facilities, assisted living facilities, nursing homes, apartment buildings and condominiums. He routinely advises clients on related issues regarding valuation, exemptions, abatements, and farmland assessment qualifications.

If you were unable to attend, please view the Program Recording.

Related Attorneys

Michael J. Coskey

Partner
732.476.2690
Email