

Business & Corporate

Making the most of business opportunities is essential to operating a successful company. For business entities, their owners, and key decision-makers, the importance of having a trust-based relationship with a legal team to support strategic objectives cannot be overstated. The attorneys on Greenbaum's business and corporate law team build long-term client relationships by providing practical and efficient solution-oriented representation. Our sophisticated knowledge of both the big picture issues and the fine point details of business dealings here in New Jersey is among our key competencies.

We represent a diverse client base that ranges from entrepreneurs and emerging companies to established middle-market companies and family-owned operations and also includes larger regional and national companies. Regardless of the size of the client's operations, our work process is rooted in understanding each client's unique business and financial circumstances, their immediate needs, and their long-range goals. We then tailor our representation to meet those objectives.

The firm's business and corporate attorneys advise companies throughout all phases of the business life cycle across an expansive range of industries, including manufacturing, distribution, retail, service industries, information technology, food and beverage, transportation, real estate, healthcare, renewable energy, franchising, insurance and finance. We have particular strength and experience in serving as outside general counsel to small and middle-market companies who lack an in-house legal resource.
