

Personal Injury Defense

Greenbaum has defended businesses, public entities, and their insurers in significant personal injury cases, including those involving disabling or disfiguring physical or psychological injuries or death. Whether the injury occurred as a result of a product defect, professional negligence, ordinary negligence, intentional acts, in the workplace, in a building or on the street, the liability issues and causation issues can be difficult and unique.

Our approach is to look at the case from every angle and focus on the issues which present the best opportunity to prevail or limit the client's exposure. These cases may have an emotional impact that adds to their difficulty. We have tried numerous personal injury lawsuits involving severely injured and very sympathetic plaintiffs and have experience in attempting to control the atmosphere in the courtroom.
